

---

The selling season.

Posted by Renatogrant - 2008/02/17 19:25

---

Is now for A/W 08.

If you need buyers to view your winter collections, contact me & I will help you.

I sell everyday & hve boutiques & dept stores buying the designers I represent. These are the best stores in the UK and Ireland and you cannot do this by leaving it to chance. There is a tried & tested method we use. If interested, contact me. Anyone can say they sell, proof is in the pudding. I don't take orders from Browns Focus, Selfridges, Austique etc etc by chance. I can show you how we do it so your collection can have the best chance of success.

Renato@hemisphereassociates.co.uk

---

Re:The selling season.

Posted by glamgurl36 - 2008/02/20 19:35

---

that sounds like a great service you offer

---

Re:The selling season.

Posted by Renatogrant - 2008/02/21 00:31

---

Thankyou! I think it's pretty unique in as much as new designers are not really shown the in's & out's of sales & will make a lot of errors when approaching buyers which will lead to them not getting appointments therefore little to no sales on their collections. This in turn leads to no production & no stockists representing their line. All a lot of new designers/brands are left with is a beautiful sample collection which defeats the purpose of what they are trying to so. My approach is to outline what just to do in lamens terms as well as supplying a current upto date womenswear buyer database & softwareas well as vital information that most overlook but is critical for success & legal protection. My buyer database has taken me many years as a fashion agent to complile. The designers I have helped so far seem very pleased with what they have recieved and are as we speak approaching the very same buyers I approach.

---