Are you an student who has become an ebay expert? Do you you know how to:

- get the maximum profit for each item
- write listing titles and descriptions
- take quality photographs of items
- package items

Are you currently selling stuff on ebay in your spare time.

We are looking for people with experience of buying and selling on ebay to work with us managing listings.

The post is based in London

Hello KT

Please let me knw quantity per color that you need and I would appreciate a picture or better a scan (with a ruler to have design and hole size reference) of what you need. This would facilitate in providing you what you exactly need or something very similar.

You can reply here or send more detailed info and pictures to ranerox888@hotmail.com

Hello Katharine

If you still need these fabrics, could you please be more specific as to what type of fabrics you are looking for so I can provide you details from my side. If you have pictures or scan of these fabrics, that would be a great help in determining them. Then let me know details like quantity required and when you need them.

i am desperately seeking a very long (by very long i am speaking the length of an average ball of wool, however long that is) length of ribbon which is at least 2 inches wide. i don't want to spend masses on it, so don't want it to be extremely expensive. i need this in possibly a vintage tan sort of colour. does anyone know of a good supplier, online or a store?

Hello.
I am writing to specifically thank you for making it easier for us to read new postings. With the earlier alerts that I received, I first had to click the link then it opens up to the Fashion Capital Home Page. I still had to do a few steps to get to the actual page of the new posting to a topic I subscribed too. Now it opens up directly to the new posting. Thank you again.

I am in the process of developing a new menswear range which will consist of a number of denim items. The range is being aimed at the top end of the market
Could anybody recommend a good & reliable Denim supplier?

Thanks in advance
